Instructor: Eric van der Vort

Office Hours: By appointment.

Course Location: CH020

Course Schedule: 11 May – 22 May 2015, 1:00pm – 5:00pm

Course Description:

Is American democracy doomed? Is our history of civility and self-rule over? Or are these simply stories that we've told ourselves over the years? This class examines these questions and their political consequences through the context of two contemporary political television shows, "House of Cards" and "The Newsroom." By the stories we tell ourselves about American democracy as a society through classroom discussions, through viewing television episodes, and reading a variety of perspectives about the decline of democratic rule and civic trust in modern America, we will hopefully be able to disentangle fact from fiction and apply what we discover to questions about self rule in the United States.

A note on content:

Both series that we will view involve adult content and language. Students should be aware of this and use their own judgment in deciding how to proceed with the course.

Course Objectives:

At the end of this course, students will be able to:

- Compare popular expectations against reality about the role of the presidency and the media in American democracy.
- Analyze fictional representations of American democracy and their thematic content.

Course Readings:

All readings will be available on Blackboard unless otherwise noted. All readings should be completed before class begins on the date assigned. There is no required textbook.

Episode Viewing:

All selected episodes will be shown during class time for both units. We will be the first 10 episodes of House of Cards and the first season of The Newsroom. As these viewings will form the bases for many of your written responses and exams during the course, you may wish to take notes during the episodes. House of Cards is also available to view on Netflix. The Newsroom is available through HBO's website, if you have access; otherwise, I have sole control of the library's only copy of the DVD through the course of Maymester.

Course Expectations:

Because of the truncated Maymester format, all expectations for this course are heightened. I thus encourage you to put other commitments on pause for the two weeks we will spend together. While I understand that work, life and the lure of warm weather all place demands on our attention, this course will be my primary focus for its two week duration, and I hope that it will be yours as well. You are expected to attend class every day, having done all of the readings and having completed the daily written assignments. Our in-class sessions will be primarily discussion based, and it will make everyone's day more enjoyable if you come prepared to make thoughtful contributions to class based on the readings and the episodes we view in class.

Grading:

Final grades will be based on the following items:

- In-class participation: 30%
- Attendance: 10%
- Midterm exam: 20%
- Final exam: 20%
- Written reflections/responses: 10%
- Daily reading quizzes: 10%

Participation:

*As I note above, the course will be heavily discussion-based. We should have no shortage of topics, given the content and style of the course. Student participation should be informed, insightful and frequent. I do not believe there is any reason for making a trade-off between the three. I recognize that some students will have stronger backgrounds and interest in American politics, but I expect that all students will join in discussions at some point during each session. If you fail to join in our class discussions regularly, I will call on you to join in. Discussion and speaking in class are a critical element of success in this course, as they are in life.*

Attendance:

Attendance in the Maymester format is particularly important. Missing a single day is the equivalent of missing a full week in a traditional semester. As a result, there will be no excused absences except in accordance with university policy, such as absences documented through the Office of Student Assistance or the Dean's Office of the College of Arts and Sciences or religious observations registered at the beginning of the term through MySlice. Attendance forms a small portion of the final grade, but absences will also negatively impact your participation grade.

Exams:

There will be two exams for this course. The exams will each consist of one question and will take the form of take home essays. Your responses should be no more than 1,000 words in length. The first exam will be handed out in class on Friday, May 15 and will be due by 10am on Monday, May 17. The second exam will be handed out in class on Friday, May 22 and will be due by 10am on May 27. Both exams will be submitted via e-mail. The exam prompts will only be distributed in class on the dates described above. Late exam papers will not be accepted.

Reading Quizzes:

The readings for this course will total roughly 25-30 pages a day. We will discuss these in class, and you are expected to have completed them before entering the classroom. There will be a reading quiz every day, with approximately 1-3 questions on it related to the day's readings. These quizzes will be quite easy for those who have done the required readings, and should serve to help, rather than harm, your grade. Quizzes will be conducted with good, old-fashioned pen and paper.

Written Reflections:

As part of your work for the course, you are required to complete 5 written reflections. These responses are intended to be brief reflections on whatever elements of that day's theme, readings, discussion and episodes you found most interesting. These responses should be no more than 300 words. They may contain reflections, questions about the material, continuation of the class discussion or some combination of the three. Responses must be submitted on Blackboard by 10am, before class begins. You must complete one reflection every two days. So, for example, a reflection will be due for 11 or 12 May, another will be due for 13 or 14 May, and so on.

Academic Integrity:

Be familiar with the university rules on plagiarism and do not violate them. Plagiarized work (including any material downloaded from the web and not cited as such) will be given a failing grade and students turning such work in may also be given an F in the class. In addition, work for this class may not be turned in to fulfill requirements for another class. Finally, any violations of the academic integrity policy will be reported to the Academic Integrity Office. More information can be found here. <http://academicintegrity.syr.edu/>

Reasonable Accommodation:

Our community values diversity and seeks to promote meaningful access to educational opportunities for all students. Syracuse University and I are committed to your success and to supporting Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 as amended and the Americans with Disabilities Act (1990). This means that in general no individual who is otherwise qualified shall be excluded from participation in, be denied benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity, solely by reason of having a disability.

If you believe that you need accommodations for a disability, please contact the Office of Disability Services (ODS), located in Room 309 of 804 University Avenue (315-443-4498). ODS is responsible for coordinating disability-related accommodations and will issue students with documented disabilities Accommodation Authorization Letters, as appropriate. Since accommodations may require early planning and generally are not provided retroactively, please contact ODS as soon as possible. Please present any Accommodation Letters to me as early as possible, and at least before the midterm exam. For further information, their website is: <http://disabilityservices.syr.edu>

You are also welcome to contact me privately to discuss your academic needs, although I cannot arrange for disability-related accommodations.
